LORD READING SEES SAFETY IN LEAGUE

British Special Ambassador Returns to Close Up His Affairs Here.

SOON TO RESUME BENCH

Believes Covenant Drawn in Paris Will Justify Hopes of Creators.

The Cunarder Aquitania got in yesterday with gallant negro troops and a large number of civilian passengers, including Lord and Lady Reading. She sild alongside her pier in record time after running down a British freighter in the bay. Lord Reading gave out this statement:

"It is with great pleasure that I find myself for the fourth time since the war in the United States and about to resume my duties in Washington as British Ambassador. When I left for England in August of last year my intention was to stay there only a few weeks. At that time the great counter offensive of Marshal Foch had been successfully begun. Foch had been successfully begun, but it had not yet sufficiently de-veloped for us to appreciate the full effect of the plan of continuous hammer strokes, which eventually smeshed German militarism and gave complete victory to the al-

Sociated Powers.

'The rapidly changing situation in Europe led to repeated postponements of my intended return to Washington. Events of cardinal importance succeeded each other so quickly that to some degree the pivot of Anglo-American cooperation shifted from Washington to Paris and London. At this time the fulies were largely dependent upon the uninterrupted transport of your great army to Europe. Some 2,000,-000 American troops already had been safely conveyed across the At-lantic in spite of the German submarines by your ships and ours es-corted by your and our navies. A programme had been arranged, which assured the continuous ar-rival of large additional American forces for many months to come had not the Germans made their renot the Germans made their request for an armistice. Now these same ships of yours and ours are returning those who had been so ready to sacrifice all for the great cause. No longer is the escort of our navies required, for the German submarines have been driven off the German submarines have been driven off the

Waited for President.

"After the terms of the armistice had been settled by the associated Powers came the news that your President would visit Europe for the purpose of attending the Peace Conference, It then became my duty as it was my privilege to await his arrival and to remain in England during his visit. Those who were present always will remember the wonderful reception given to him by the British people. They were de-lighted to have the opportunity of paying their tribute to your Presi-dent and through him to the Ameri-

"During the whole of my stay in London and Paris the various matters intrusted to me by my Government have kept me in close and constant relations with the American Administration. These involved important questions, such as the pro-vision of supplies and relief to Eu-rope and the use of the enemy's mercantile marine. But the emerg-ency which led to my political and diplomatic activities during the war came to an end soon after the cescame to an end soon after the ces sation of hostilities, and the moment now approaches when I must resume my duties as Lord Chief Justice of England. Remembering, as I shall, your generous reception of me as British representative, I could not contemplate the termination of my period as Ambassador to the United States without paying another visit to America to take my leave of the American Government and people. I wish it had been possible for me to stay in Washington long enough to play a part as British Ambassado in the great political developments which are daily unfolding themselves at the Peace Conference.

No Dissension Among Allies.

"It already has become apparent that those who relied upon dissen-sions between the associated Pow-ers are doomed to disappointment and that the Powers assembled in Paris are determined to arrive by agreement at solutions of the mo-mentous problems affecting the mentous problems affecting the fu-ture peace of the world. Whatever-may happen the Paris Peace Con-ference will be ever memorable for may happen the Paris Peace Conference will be ever memorable for the part taken by your President and for the covenant of the League of Nations as drafted by the representatives of the Powers there assembled. They have acted in accordance with those principles of justice and liberty to all nations which have inspired alike the development of the American Union and of the British Empire.

"My present visit to my great regret must be restricted to a short period, during which I shall be mainly engaged in negotiating matters specially entrusted to me by my Government and in winding up the high commissionership. These are indeed, different duties, from the high commissionership. These are indeed different duties, from the high commissionership these are indeed different duties, from the barries once more I cannot but think again and again of the whole hearted good will and sympathy you extended to Great Britain and her allies during the grave events of lust sering when America sorang allies during the grave events of host spring when America sprang forward determined to help with all her might in the defeat of the en-emy and the achievement of our common purpose. The result stands forever chronicled in the history of the world."

Will Go Direct to Washington.

Lord Reading was unwilling to am plify his typewritten statement as to the League of Nations, but after urging said he had yet to learn what was going on here and because of that would go im-mediately to Washington to inform him-self. He was met at the pler by members of the British Consulate.

Lieutenant-Commander John L. Callan, Naval Aviation Service, Albany, brother of Albert L. Callan, a former Assemblyman, returned on the Aquitania. He went over at the beginning of the war and as an expert flier assisted the Italian Government in organizing its flying corps. With headquarters in Rome, went into every brench of the cervice and brought to Italy several American fliers as instructors. He became a Lieutenant-Commander in the $5 fo Hats American naval air forces in Italy, has been decorated with the Croce di Gueria When We of Italy, has the Italian war ribbon and has been made a cavaller of the Order has been made a cavaller of the Order of San Maurizzlan by the King of Italy. Dr. Copeland advocated the establishment of official drug stations, and that persons known to be addicts be obliged to go to these stations and to register.

Chief had protested against the order involved as tending to take from him control of disciplinary measures in his forces. The protest is now being considered by Major-Gen. Crowder, Judge Advocate General, and the order may be revoked.

The order was issued on September 11 last. It provides that court-martial cases in the A. E. F. shall be passed on for review to the office in France of Brig.-Gen. Edward A. Kreger of Gen. Crowder's office.

Vilhjalmur Stefansson's Own Story of Four Years in the Arctic

He has fairly won the name of being the most extraordinary of circumpolar explorers.

"The rifle bullet," he has said, "is a travellers' check that is honored everywhere." He has proved it. Bullets from his hunting rifle have paid his board in the frozen wastes through the rigors of ten Arctic winters. He is a distinguished ethnologist. His aims are scientific, not sensational. He regrets his special fame as discoverer of the blond Eskimo, which to him was only an incident of the day's work afield. He has lived in the Arctic for years on end, out of touch with the civilized world. Officially he was given up as lost, only to reappear in thriving condition with great treasures of scientific material.

Although the most modest of men, he sets forth all this varied experience in a narrative of absorbing interest.

Its first instalment will appear next Sunday.
